A Possible Script to Help When Asking For Readathon Donations

Asking for donations is never easy. However, our hope is that if you and your family choose to participate in our Readathon fundraiser, you and your child(ren) will feel engaged in our school community and empowered by the act of supporting The Children's School.

Here, should you choose to use it, is a helpful script that explains why and how it works:

Hi _____,

This is _____ and I'm participating in the Readathon at my school to help raise money towards ___ (please see below for grade-specific suggestions)___ for all ___ (here you will say which grade you are in)___ graders, which I'm totally excited about .

Here is how it works. For the entire month of February, I read as much as possible each day, and I keep track of the minutes that I read in a reading log that I keep in my school folder. Will you please sponsor my reading? This means that you would give me an amount of money per minute that I read. If you choose to sponsor me per minute, you will want to wait until the end of the month to learn how many minutes I was able to read, so that you know the total amount of your donation. A different way to sponsor me is that you can donate a lump sum of money for my reading efforts for the entire month.

All of the money that you donate will go directly to P.S. 372 to support enrichment at my school. 20% of what we raise will go to our school library to buy new book titles. Thank you so much for considering supporting my reading efforts and my school!
